Ohio Legislature-The Spenkership, The Ohio Legislature will convene in Columbus on next Monday week, the 6th of January. Already the wires begin to move, and candidates are button holing and letterwriting, urging their claims for the several different offices to be filled by the Legislature at its opening.

At the organization, as usual, we doubt not, thre will be a sharp contest for the Speakership. In different parts of the State the claims of different individuals are urgedand there is no lack of material for a Speaker. Among others spoken of we hear the name of Dr. Scott, of Warren, mentioned, and without wishing to disparage the claims of other gentlemen, we feel like remarking that his election for the position would, in our opinion, be an excellent one. He is now serving his third term in the House, is well acquainted with all the Legislative machinery, has an excellent voice, and fine personal address, and we think would fill the Speaker's chair admirably. We believe his friends intend to urge his claims with energy.

Removal of Government Work from Ciacinunti.

It will be recollected by our readers that in last Wednesday's Panss we alluded to rumors in circulation to the effect that Gov. eroment work was to be discontinued in our city by orders from the authorities at Washington, and that hereafter clothing, arms, saddlery, wagons, &c., for the Western troops were to be made in the Eastern cities. These rumors, it appears, were not without foundation, as it has been reliably ascertained that the Quartermaster at this place has received an order from Quartermaster-General Meigs to award no more contracts in Cincianati for the manufacture of clothing for the soldierr. Why such an order has been issued we have not learned-in fact, no one appears to know. It can not be that no more clothing is needed or will be. There are now in the West and South-west about one hundred and fifty thousand troops, and admitting, which we very much doubt, that they have all been provided with plenty of good, warm clothing, how long will it be before their clothing will have to be renewed? Shou'd the war continue six months longer. every soldier now in active service will have to be furnished with new clothing by that time, while at least a part of the clothing of those who have been in the army for the last five or six months now need renewing, or will in a very short time. Clothing can be made in Cincinnati as low and as good, as in any city in the world, or any thing else required by the Government for the use of the army. We ask for no more than we are legitimately entitled to-a fair share of the contracts for supplies for the Western army. We have no desire to take from the Eastern cities contracts for supplying the large army on the Potomac, or troops quartered at other points in the East, but with these we think they should be satisfied.

No city in the Union, in proportion to population, has done more than Cincinnati toward suppressing the rebellion. Out of a population of about one hundred and seventy thousand, not less than twelve thousand of our citizens have gone into the army; and at the commencement of hostilities, our Council voted $250,000 out of the City Treasury as a loan to the State of Ohio, to be used in raising and equipping troops for the General Government, besides some $6,000 paid M. Greenwood for the manufacture of cannon, and $10,000 loaned Gen. Mitchell for the use of the Government.

It is true, we have been receiving a fair share of Government work; but why should this work be discontinued here and taken to some other place? Upon this point our people would like to be enlightened; and, if the work should be removed, they will hold to a strict accountability their Representatives at Washington, whose duty it is to see that Cincinnati gets what she is fairly entitled to.

St. Louis got the building of the ganboats for the contemplated expedition down the Mississippi River, simply because she had a Representative at Washington who attended to her interests. If the matter had been properly attended to in time by those of our citizens whose position at Wa-hington gives them a commanding influence these boats would have been built at Cincinnati, and a large amount of money thus placed in the pockets of our mechanics.

Three of the members of President Lincoln's Cabinet are from the West, one of whom was, for many years, a resident of Cincinnati. This fact was sufficient in itself to warrant the belief and hope that the longneglected West would at last receive the attention and consideration that her population, wealth and enterprise entitled her to. Have the hopes and expectations of the people of the West, in this respect, been realized? Let us see. Out of the two hundred or more versels added to the navy, only some eight or ten were built in the West, the balance having been purchased or built in the East. When the rebellion broke out in the South, troops were drawn from the West to protect Washington, leaving Kentucky, Missouri and Southern Ohio exposed to the rebels; and it was only after repeated and most carnest solicitation that the Government authorized General Mitchell to look to the and protection of Cincinnati, and then the city had to furnish out of her own tressury the means to make the necessary fortifications. And now the contracts for supplying Western troops are to be taken from the West and given to the Bast.

We trust and bope that our representatives at Washington will make an effort to have General Meigs' order countermanded, and that a fair proportion of the manufacturing necessary for supplying the Army of the West shall continue to be done in Cincinnati. Our mechanics need the work, and they are justly entitled to it. a conservate

A Contract for Horses. Government has contracted with John M. Clay and Mr. Thompson, of Kentucky, for six hundred horses.

A Christman Present, &ce. Almost within a stone's throw of the town of Connersville-one of the most thriving and beautiful of Hoosier county-seats-lie the broad meadows and rich fields of the "best, and best cultivated farm in Fayette County;" at least so said the awarding com mittee of a recent county fair, and a handsome testimonial was made the owner of the farm by the said committee, in consideration of the peatners and thrift displayed throughout its borders. On more than one occasion we have had the pleasure of roaming over the broad fields of this model farm, and of noting the liberal scale and intelligent manner in which every department of work is managed. On every hand are the evidences of intelligent husbandry. The master spirit here is not afraid to avail himself of all modern improvements in agricultural machinery, and we see here all the latest improved mowers, reapers, planters, threshers, &c., and the well-filled granaries and plethoric stacks are evidences that brains are quite as important and productive on a farm as guano. The sleek horses, the fat cattle and grunting porkers all wear an air of content and comfort that bespeak the careful attention and humanity of their owner.

The air of neatness, comfort and order manifest all over the farm is only equaled by that which pervades the household. Here we have seen a noble matron surrounded by "five sturdy sons" and one fair daughterpresenting as contented and happy a family circle as eye ever rested on. But the last time we enjoyed the hospitalities of this family there was one vacant chair-the angel of death had swept his dark wing over it, and we missed from the "circle" one whose nature was all noble-whose heart never throbbed but with grand impulses and whose smile was ever genial; but he is at rest.

We were pleasantly reminded of the gen erous hospitality of this family a few days since, by the receipt of a box containing near a peck of delicious winter pears. The pear, we believe, is an emblem of true friendship, and as such we prize this present highly. A merry Christmas and long life to our friends in their cheerful, happy home.

A released and returned prisoner from Bichmond, Va, to Washington, gives a sorry account of matters at that place. Nine thousard rebel patients are in the public hospitals of Richmond, and under private care. Indeed, nearly every house has its sick or wounded soldier. There is a great lack of medicines, and in many of the Secession regiments a disease called the "camp fever" prevails to an alarming extent. The soldiers are sadly destitute of shoes. Good boots sell in Richmond at $25 a pair; ladies' boots at $10, and ladies' shoes at from $4 to $5. Pro visions of all kinds are scarce, and command exorbitant prices, and the general discontent is hightened by the system of drafting, which the Southerners just now find it nec essary to resort to.

Books. The Vermont Quarterly Gazetteer, a Historical Magazine, published by Miss A. M. Hemenvay, of Ludlow, contains a series of township histories, grouped in counties, embracing a digest of the civil, biographical, geological and literary history of each township, written by those who are personally cognizant of the matters of which they write. It is an excellent publication. Would it not be well for one similar, in regard to the Ohio River Valley, to be started in this

A special dispatch from Washington says the Government dispatches concerning the Mason and Slidell difficulty will be of a dignified but most conciliatory nature. They will satisfy the English Cabinet that no insult was intended, and there is not the slightest doubt but that the affair will be speedily, honorably and amicably arranged.

Tue Montgomery Advertiser has a significant persgraph, which states that there must be a "diabolical" attempt to burn that city by some of the denizens, as fires have become very frequent of late.

A Singular Theory. We extract the following from the Washington correspondence of the Philadelphia

There are numerous and ingenious theories presented by those who are now discussing the question of a war with England. A prominent Border-State politician originates one which is ingenious. If England makes a peremptory demand for the possession of Muson and Slidell, and refuses arbitration on the part of the other European States, then let us recognize the Confederacy as it is, only bolding the Border States. Being an inde-pendent Confederacy, the fight will simply be confined to the border, unless Jefferson Davis should recede from his claim to hold Kentucky, Maryland and Missouri. Our navy will be released from the block-ade, and the armies of the North will be withdrawn from all of the Southern country with the exception of the tract of territory contested. Our army would then be released from any foe on the continent, and with the army and navy we could then meet England on an equal footing. She would seem to be allied to a Confederacy based upon slavery—a Confederacy which is only the representative of cotton and the slave trade. The Southern people would divide among themselves, and a great part of the South would assist in the war upon the ex-

I give you this theory, because it is exciting some attention. It is ingenious and smusing.

IMPORTANT PROSPECTED TREATY WITH Maxico.—Among the papers relating to Mexican affairs transmitted to the Senate yesterday and referred to the Committee on Foreign Affairs, was the project of a treaty with Mexico, seat home by Minister Cor-wip, the provisions of which are of the ut-most importance. Its confirmation would, it is believed, cause the withdrawal of the English and French fleets from the Gulf, and leave Spain to fight alone her old col-ony. It is understood that the proposed treaty provides on the one hand for the payment of $11,000,000 by our Government to Mexico, applied to the satisfaction of En glish and French creditors, and, on the other hand, for a grant to the United States of extensive commercial privileges, as well as the adjus ment of all our outstanding debts, and a right of transit across Mexican terri-

Attack on General McCiellan. notice with regret a disposition certain quarters to attack General McClel-lan. Because he can not achieve impossibilities, and because he will not impe by a precipitate advance, and because suspected of entertaining certain heretical opinions on the subject of the negro-he is pronounced unfit for his place. Pamphlets proving that he is a humbug and pretender are written; the Honorable Mr. modestly suggests that his epauletes shall be stripped from his shoulders; the Honorable Thuddeus Stevens makes him the subject of a philippic in a Republican caucus. One or two journals of character and position in our own State, on the strength of a piece of Congressional gossip, launch against him all the thunderbolts of rhetoric.

Do those gentlemen consider what they are doing? Are they aware of the injury their assaults upon the young Commander in-Chief are likely to inflict upon the cause? Are they aware that loss of confidence in him inevitably carries with it loss of confidence in the Union; and every shaft that is aimed at him is indirectly aimed at the heart of the Republic? Are they aware that unless the country confides in him-gives him its faith and its support-he can not succeed against the enemy? Is it the part of wisdom-is it the part of true patriot--to attempt to degrade the Commanderin-Chief in the eyes of the people-to at-tempt to convince the country that he is unfit for the place he holds-to instill into the army the notion that they are led by a charlatan or a coward?

Wisely or not, he has been placed in su-preme command. He is there by the sanction and approval of General Scott. He is there by order of the President. He is there by the almost unanimous voice of the people. And yet members of Congress and pamphleteers and newspaper editors would have us believe that the idol of yesterday is made of "base metal;" that the conqueror of Western Virginia, the young chief, who has thus far borne himself so modestly, yet so gallantly-who has evoked out of the chaos of Bull Run order and discipline-who has converted a mob of raw recruits into the best army the world ever saw-don't know his business! They would have us believe that because he has not seen fit to inaugurate certain movements-to adopt the programme of quill-driving generals; because he has not seen fit to accept for his motto the Roman maxim of "make haste slowly;" because the instant he assumed command he did not by some mysterious means or other scatter the hosts of the enemy like chaff before the wind, and bring the war to a close with a short turn-he is no great general, but a shallow martinet. They would have us believe that because he does not choose to place himself upon an emancipation platform he is virtually a traitor to the cause and a mere shallow nigger-catcher. It is not difficult to see what will be the effect of such attacks if continued. The people will lose heart. Thousands of good patriots will make up their minds that the struggle is useless, because we have no men to lead us to victory. Confidence in our chief arm lost-the conviction that all this work of preparation has been vain-that without any comprehensive plan, but striking blindly and blunderingly against a fully organized foe-will be disastrous beyond measure. These assaults may, moreover, drive General McClellan into rash movements-and a darker reverse than that of Bull Run be added to the swiftly shifting scenes that crowd the stage. Would it not be the part of wisdom to wait until we are sure General McClellan is not the "right man for the right place," before we let loose the dogs of war upon him? Albany Evening Journal.

The business at the Brooklyn Navy-yard does not appear to have been at all affected by the adverse tone of the news from Great Britain. The ordinary routine work was pushed on as rapidly as possible, but beyond that nothing was done. The movements at the pard were as follows:

The purchased brig Ohio arrived, to be armed and put into commission. She is intended for the blockading fleet, and is pierced for four 32 pounders. The steamer Western World havied down the yard to receive armsment, which will consist of two 32pounders and one Parrott gun. The bark Pursuit left the yard, and anchored off the Battery, where she will remain notil she receives her powder from the magazine on Elis' Island. The steamer E B. Hale also went off the Battery for the same purpose. The sloop-of-war Oneida hauled down the yard, under the shears, to receive her masts. She will be rigged as a three-masted schooler. Brauvont .- Beaufort is a good-sized town, SEAUFORT.—Beaufort is a good-sized town, situated at the bend of the river. On the left are the white chimneys and dark roofs of houses, chiefly residences of wealthy men, almost hidden by the luxuriant foliage of the commanding trees, and in the fore ground are a few bathing and boat houses. To the right are costly residences, fairly dezzling the eye with their brightness. The soldiers are delighted with their change of quarters from the arid, sandy soil of Hilton Head. They are not allowed to sleep in the houses, but their tents are pitched in pleas-ant places, and there is green grass and foliage for the eye to rest upon, instead of the cheerless surroundings of Port Royal. Already the common - and a beautiful common it is - is dotted with white tents, the soldiers swarm beneath the old trees, the camp fires are lighted, and savory odors arise from the ateaming camp kettles.

Beaufort College is a small but pretentious stuccoed building of the Grecian order, standing in an open space, surrounded by a rail-fence. The building is very much out of repair. In almost every house I entered I found more or less furniture, some of it very elegant; but great ravages have been committed. Rosewood writing-desks and oak book cases, which were left lecked, had been broken open with axes, and every thing showed marks of ruthless treatment. The are lighted, and savory odors arise from the showed marks of ruthless treatment. The Southerners acquit us of all blame of this destruction, and acknowledge that it was done by the negroes, but say that they did it "out of regard for their masters, and to keep the property out of the hands of the Yankers."

Judge Storer decided this case, a proceed ing to enforce a decree for the sale of the real estate of defendant, who is a volunteer real estate of defendant, who is a volunteer in the Ninth Regiment Ohio volunteers.

The defendant asks the Court to suspend the sale, claiming the benefit of the law passed at the last session of the Legislature, exempting from execution the property of the militia of Ohio mustered into the service.

The plaintiff urges that the defendant, being on furlough, the law does not apply, also, that the law itself is unconstitutional, as impairing the remedy given by law for the recovery of debts.

The Court said that whether the soldier was in hospital, on furlough, or in the field, he was under the obligation to serve the Government—and this duty demanded a reciprocal protection on the part of the

CANADA THREATENING TO INVADE MAINE The Toronto Leader has heard the war news from England, and indulges itself in the following:

The Danger Not All on One Side .- In discussing the probabilities of war, the Northern journals assume that Canada will be the only battle ground. Their towns bordering Upper Canada may suffer, they admit, but they exclude from their calcula tions all consideration of fighting on other than Canada soil. Undoubtedly the calamity would be felt heavily in the frontier disricts-too heavily to allow of its presence being treated as a trifling thing. But Maine would feel it scarcely less severely. With the British Navy on the Atlantic coast, the occupation of Portland would be accomplished as easily as the bombardment of New York or Boston; and with Portland in British hands there would be no difficulty in landing regular troops, and occupying a large part of the State; establishing a new ine of connection between the ocean and the Canada frontier, which would be of the nighest importance in a military point of view. After the first few weeks Maine would be as much a battle ground as any part of this province.

A SHORT DESCRIPTION OF MUMFORDSVILLE AND VICINITY.—Mumfordsville, the capital of Hart County, Ky., is situated on the right or northern bank of Green River, and is seventy four miles from Louisville. The river is navigable for small steamers during part of the year. It has a population of about eight bundred. Near this town is a remarkable spring, which is connected with a mill-pond, the waters of which, at about twelve o'clock each day, rise twelve or fif-teen inches, overflow the dam and recede to their ordinary level with all the regularity of the tides. Six miles east of the town is a hole shaped like an inverted cone, seventy feet in diameter at the top, but diminuted to ten or twelve feet at the depth of about thirty feet. A stone thrown into this hole rumble down the sides without returning any sound indicating its having touched the bottom. o the same vicinity, near the top of an elevation called the Frenchman's Knob, commences a hole or sink, which has been de scended two hundred and seventy five feet by means of a rope, without finding bottom. The wonderful Mammoth Cave is only a few miles from this town.
